

Advanced Manufacturing

Process examples using Xaar's digital inkjet

Digital inkjet is increasingly considered for advanced manufacturing processes for the deposition of functional fluids across a broad range of industrial applications. As an inkjet innovator we are focussed on developing these applications. We have a professional team working closely with manufacturers, fluid formulators and specialist printer makers to bring these new processes to market.

Below are some examples of how Xaar's digital inkjet can be applied to manufacturing processes.

